Altius Minerals Corp. (ALS-TSXV)

Altius is the pre-eminent exploration company in Newfoundland, an area with a long mining history that has only begun to reveal its riches.

It was Altius that initiated the gold exploration boom in central Newfoundland by proving the existence of a vast area with Nevada-style and Nevada-scale geology and gold potential. Barrick, after carrying out extensive due diligence, bought into the concept of "Nevada in Newfoundland", and is now funding work on a big piece of Altius' property position. Two other companies are also funding work on Altius' central Newfoundland gold properties.

The gold project is actually only a small part of this company's potential, with several other companies funding work on other Altius exploration projects in the province. The company seems to have an endless pipeline of large scale exploration prospects, and no shortage of major companies willing to fund work on its projects.

The price is now only 55% of its recent high and it is destined to move back up as work progresses on its numerous properties. Success on any of these projects will have a big impact on the value of the company.
